Discovery: Leo Spauls

Cry is the latest track to be released from singer-songwriter Leo Spauls, with the song displaying a key sense of melody hidden within his songwriting.

We're particularly reminded of Morrissey's music and there is certainly a Mancunian feel to things, however if you're not a fan of The Smiths then don't fear, as there is enough here for the average pop-rock/indie fan to enjoy anyway. The vocals could do with a little bit of work but otherwise it's a catchy song, and we particularly enjoyed the piano tinkles and backing choir on the chorus.

We particularly liked the verse guitar riff, which you can check out in the song below:
